FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

THE LEWIS MACHINE & TOOL COMPANY CERTIFIED ISO 9001:2000

MILAN, IL (February 2, 2008) – Lewis Machine & Tool Company, an Illinois based company that designs, prototypes, and manufactures small arms, accessories and tooling components for law enforcement, military, commercial manufacturers, and responsible civilians, is now ISO 9001:2000 certified.

In registering for ISO 9001:2000 a company must comply with a number of requirements through a third-party auditor for certification. The company must demonstrate the Quality procedures and policies that they have in place to obtain customer satisfaction through the delivery of consistent products and services that meet or exceed customer expectations. ISO 9001:2000 also stipulates a requirement for the continuous improvements to an already established Quality Management system. The ISO 9001:2000 combines three former standards, the 9001, 9002, and the 9003 into one – the 9001. This new version places a company's process management in the forefront requiring involvement from upper management to integrate quality into the business system. The audit was conducted by Intertek, the leading international provider of quality and safety services including ISO certification.

For twenty-eight years, Lewis Machine & Tool Company's mission has not waived from their promise to deliver quality, price and delivery of machined parts, weapon systems, assemblies and engineering services to their customers. LMT has made a long term commitment to uphold these values to its employees, the community and the environment.

Lewis Machine & Tool Company, an ISO 9001:2000 company and GSA supplier since 2005, was founded in 1980 in Milan, Illinois, with the mission of designing and producing the highest quality products for military and government agencies.
